

Just a short complaint about the fact that on network and cable television we first had to have the "Bug" in the corner telling us what the network was. It has now grown to a constant advertising medium for future shows and sometimes products. First it was a few seconds now I find ads are left up for entire shows except paid commercials. Is there no end to it?